

Amy Null

MBA, SBB
Surveyor
The Joint Commission

Prior to joining The Joint Commission as a laboratory surveyor in November 2016, Ms. Null was the System Director, Laboratory Services at Mount Carmel Health System, a member of Trinity Health, in Columbus, Ohio for 8 years. She previously held multiple positions within the Mount Carmel Health System, including as a Six Sigma Black Belt project manager and as the operations manager for the Mount Carmel Health System core laboratory.

Ms. Null received a master's degree in Business Administration (MBA) from Franklin University in Columbus, Ohio. She earned her Specialist in Blood Banking (SBB) in association with The American Red Cross and The Ohio State University, and her Six Sigma Black Belt Certification from Breakthrough Management Group. Her undergraduate degree is a Bachelor of Science in Allied Health Professions, Medical Technology from The Ohio State University.

Ms. Null is a registered medical technologist with the American Society of Clinical Pathology (ASCP) and a member of the Clinical Laboratory Management Association (CLMA).

Ms. Null chooses to work at the Joint Commission because she is passionate about ensuring that all patients receive quality laboratory tests. She also enjoys the fact that as a laboratory surveyor she is able to educate laboratories on the standards and identify opportunities for improvement that ultimately result in better care to all patients and customers.
