

Cherie J. Ulaskas

MT (ASCP), MA

Associate Director

Department of Standards Interpretation

Laboratory

The Joint Commission

Cherie Ulaskas is an Associate Director in the Department of Standards Interpretation at the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. Her responsibilities include responding to external and internal customer inquiries regarding standards interpretation and works with organizations during the post-survey process. She also serves as faculty for surveyor and other education programs and consults on the development of standards and survey process. In this capacity, she interprets standards for all Joint Commission accreditation programs and primarily interprets for the Laboratory programs.

Ms. Ulaskas has worked for Joint Commission since 1989. She has held positions in Accreditation Operations, Department of Standards, and Joint Commission Resources. She also worked as a Medical Technologist at St. James Medical Center in Illinois before joining the Joint Commission.

Ms. Ulaskas earned undergraduate degrees in Biological Sciences from Southern Illinois University and Medical Technology from Governors State University. In addition, she received a Masters Degree in Communication from Governors State University. She also has served as adjunct faculty at Robert Morris University.