PolicySource™ and other Joint Commission Resource digital subscriptions are copyrighted by The Joint Commission and therefore protected by United States copyright law. You are expected to comply with the terms of your purchased license, as explained here:

Site License. A site license entitles you to share this digital subscription with others in your organization only, either by posting to a secure intranet site or by providing other means of secure access.

System License. If you are a corporate system or the central corporate office of a system and plan to share information from this digital subscription with the facilities within your health care or hospital system, or have users who work in multiple facilities, please contact JCR Customer Service (877.223.6866 option 1) for pricing.

Please Note: If The Joint Commission becomes aware of any infringement on its copyrighted content, it reserves the right to pursue legal action against any or all parties not complying with the terms of this license.

The best way to make certain that you don't violate JCR's copyright protection is to request permission to share content by emailing the below mailbox.
