

John L. Raisch

CHFM

Former Engineer
Department of Engineering
The Joint Commission

John Raisch is a former Engineer in the Standards Interpretation Group at The Joint Commission. In this role, he provided standards interpretation, reviews and processes survey reports, consulted on and provided educational programs for Health Care Organizations and Life Safety Code Surveyors, and served as faculty for educational programs throughout the United States. John supported the Environment of Care, Emergency Management and Life Safety Chapters for all Accreditation Manuals for The Joint Commission.

John and his family reside in the northern suburbs of Chicago.

EXPERIENCE IN HEALTHCARE

- Over 25 years of healthcare experience having held managerial and director level roles in Facilities and Plant Operations Services throughout the United States.
- Managed hospital expansion projects while directing 1.5 million SF facilities and merged Hospital's in the Chicagoland area.

EDUCATION

- Bachelor's degree in Aeronautical and Astronautical Engineering, Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN

PROFESSIONAL AFFILIATIONS OR CERTIFICATIONS

- Certified Healthcare Facility Manager (CHFM).
- Member of American Society of Healthcare Engineering (ASHE)
- Healthcare Engineers Society of Northern Illinois (HESNI)